Absolute zero is the lowest limit of the thermodynamic temperature scale, a state at which the enthalpy and entropy of a cooled ideal gas reach their minimum value, taken as 0. The fundamental particles of nature have minimal vibrational motion, retaining only quantum mechanical, zero-point energy-induced particle motion. The theoretical temperature is determined by extrapolating the ideal gas ...

The real absolute value function is continuous everywhere. It is differentiable everywhere except for  $x = 0$ . It is monotonically decreasing on the interval  $(-\infty, 0]$  and monotonically increasing on the interval  $[0, +\infty)$ . Since a real number and its opposite have the same absolute value, it is an even function, and is hence not invertible. The real absolute value function is a piecewise linear ...
